The Kansas Trouble Leads Up to a State of War.

TROOPS ORDERED TO REPORT

And be Ready to Suppress any Outbreak
—Judge Botkin will be Requested to Resign His Office.

ARKANSAS, Kan., Jan. 7.—At 2:45 Wednesday Adj. Gen. Roberts reached here with seventy-five soldiers under the immediate command of Col. Rick-son, of Sterling. He brought four days' rations for his company and made arrangements for more supplies to come by rail. The intention of Gen. Roberts is to assist the duly authorized authorities in the execution of the law. He is not here, he says, to take anybody's part on any side.

Judge Botkin and his followers were awaiting the arrival of the train, all armed with Winchester. Judge Botkin carried also a big six-shooter in his cartridge belt and many others were similarly armed.

Botkin's first speech to Adj. Gen. Roberts was that he wanted arms. He would rather have fifty armed and mounted deputies, he said, than all the militiamen in Kansas. Botkin wired the governor again to send 100 stands of arms. He also wants the troops kept here three weeks and the county placed under martial law. Gen. Roberts has telegraphed the governor for instructions on this point.

Gov. Humphrey sent a dispatch to Judge Botkin Wednesday night in which he says: "If the civil authorities are unable to serve warrants for the arrest of parties properly charged with the killing of Dunn, Gen. Roberts will aid them. The military must at all times be held subordinate to the civil authority." The governor also sent a dispatch to Gen. Roberts in which he declared that the state would not place any arms in the hands of Botkin's gang of deputy sheriffs. If the guns were furnished Botkin would arm his partisans and begin a war of extermination.

TORRENS, Kan., Jan. 7.—Petitions will be circulated throughout the state urging the governor to call an extra session of the legislature for the purpose of redistricting southwestern Kansas. The several county massacres, following so closely upon the acquittal of Brennan, Sam Woods' murderer, because no jury could be secured, has aroused public sentiment all over the state. Attorney General Ives, in an interview, stated that there was no way in which great crimes could be punished in the southwest unless the legislature would disorganize the counties having a small population and attach them to the more populous counties. Gov. Humphrey said that he would have all the ringleaders in the Seward county mob arrested, but admitted that there was no likelihood of any punishment being imposed. He said that he would urge upon the first legislature convened the necessity for redistricting the state. Unless Judge Theodosius Botkin, of the Thirty-second judicial district, resigns his resignation will be requested. It is admitted by the state officials that there will be no peace in the six counties over which he presides until he is removed from the bench.

Secretary Blaine Recovered.
WASHINGTON, Jan. 7.—It was stated by Mr. Blaine's private secretary that the secretary was feeling all right but would remain at home for rest. The secretary sent down word that he expected to be able to go to the department Friday.

Teamer Issues a Challenge.
NEW YORK, Jan. 7.—John Teamer, the well-known carman, has written to a sporting paper of this city challenging either Hanlon or Gaudin to a race of 3 or 4 miles for $1,000 a side.

Destroyed by Fire.
HAMILTON, Ont., Jan. 7.—The factory of the Waukeg Sewing Machine Company was totally destroyed by fire Wednesday evening. Loss, $100,000.

THE SILK WALK.
It is Almost Everything Nowadays to Be in Style.

Two girls were walking down the avenue the other day. They were both very stylish and well dressed, but they looked as if their clothes had been made at home by a woman who sewed by the day. Another girl passed them at a rapid pace, whose light cloth suit had an unmistakable Paris cut. Her black hat was very high in the back, her feather was very fluffy and she walked with a curious motion, a simulating one of the shoulders and hips, and as she passed there was a sound of silk—swish, swish.

"I bet that is a New Yorker. Hain't she got the silk walk down to a fine point?" said the taller and darker of the two girls.

"What do you mean by silk walk?"

"Why, Alice, haven't you noticed the way all the girls are walking now, and that lovely rustling sound?"

"Oh, pahaw; anybody can have that who has a silk foundation to her skirts."

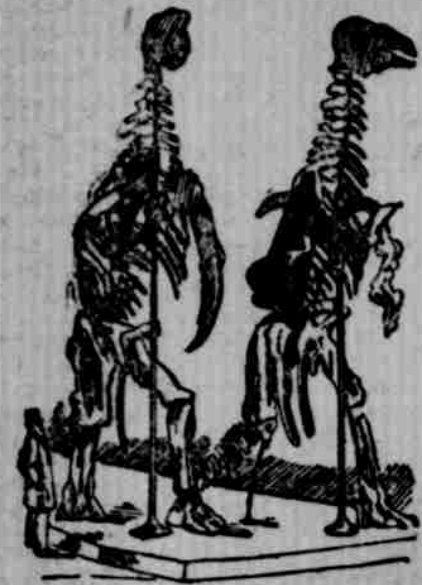

"Indeed they can't, then. Your dress is made up on silk, and I can't hear a sound. No, you've got to have on a silk lining and a silk petticoat, too. I was wild for one, and when I found I couldn't afford it—they were twenty and thirty dollars—I almost cried, until I thought of an old silk dress I had, and I've got it on now. But they don't make a bit of noise unless you wriggle your knees, a sort of corkscrew motion like this."

And the taller and darker of the two girls wriggled her way down the avenue so successfully and with such a rustle of silk that an old colored woman put down her basket of clothes and gazed after her, saying:

"Dat young lady sat'ly gwine to be a dress maker piece of she don't walk no stiddy."—Washington Post.

REMAINS OF IGUANODONS.
Remains of Interest to Naturalists and Archaeologists.
In the year 1878 the miners employed at the Bernisart colliery, Belgium, while engaged in a gallery some three hundred yards below the surface, came upon an immense chamber containing a quantity of bones. Some large bones were forwarded to a professor in Leuven university, who presently pronounced them to be the teeth of the iguanodon, a gigantic extinct reptile, whose remains had up to that time been rarely discovered. One of the few previous finds of the kind was made in the year 1859 in our own country of Sussex. On that occasion Cuvier, the celebrated naturalist, pronounced that the specimens sent him, pertaining to the importance of the Bernisart discovery, the Belgian government took the matter up, and excavations were vigorously prosecuted, with the result that upward of 100 tons of bone were sent to Brussels in twenty-two wagons. To protect them from perishing from exposure to the air, the bones—which had been carefully numbered according to the position where they were found—were coated with plaster and wrapped in cloth. When this covering was removed the bones were dipped in boiling gelatine, which restored their original firmness, and then—twelve years being consumed in the operations—the five skeletons exhibited in the Natural History museum at Brussels were laboriously built up out of these fragments. As our engraving shows, the iguanodons were creatures of great size and of a kangaroo-like appearance, from their habit of standing on their hind legs. It is supposed that their tails, which were very thick and heavy, acted as a balance, enabling them to maintain this upright position. Their diet consisted of vegetables, fish and insects. Their remains were found buried in an alluvial deposit left by the periodical river floods. We abridge the above from a very interesting paper in the Independence Belge by M. Hector Chainayre. Our engraving is from a drawing by M. Cassiers.

THE AGE OF POLITICS.

An Interesting Lecture by a Famous Professor of Vienna, Austria.

"Public spirit in the nineteenth century," was a theme lately treated by Prof. Dr. Adolph Erner of the University of Vienna, Austria. He insisted on the necessity of particular promotion of the spirit of patriotism in the students. The spirit of modern science, he said, is exclusively and one-sidedly determined by natural science, which has caused a neglect of the development of political dissection. Nothing attracts the attention of the general public at present but subjects of natural science, even women profess being interested in these questions, and, on the other hand, to be indifferent to the facts and relations of the political world. This spirit of the exact sciences has even infected men of law and philosophy, who will reduce criminal law to psychology, will talk of the "physiology" of law, of love, of art, will lecture on the "physiological method" of law and write books of many volumes on the "structure and life of the body of society." It is an influence of this physical spirit that people content the past ages of the world, even going so far as to hold the middle age and actually also the empire of ancient Rome in contempt.

A change must come and it is already preparing: the historic, political school of research has resumed its labors with courage and frankness. This reaction is also a necessary result of events. The new awakening of constitutional life, the immense creations of great statesmen in the service of popular ideas and the wonderful problems offering for solution on the basis of broader principles and which everybody knows cannot be solved by measuring and weighing or by logarithms and equations, all these circumstances have infused new energy into politics as a science and a popular interest. It will require all the wisdom and power of the political spirit to solve these difficulties and avoid fatal crises in the state organism attempting to assign to the fourth estate its just position in the social organization. It is the struggle with this problem which will make the twentieth century a political age, and nobody must hope to be able to fill his place in it unless he shall have acquired a sufficient political education.
